THAT SICK HEADACHE

Migraine is one of the most distressing of all headaches, and it calls for sympathy and understanding from the families and associates of the afflicted person.

Because migraine attacks are commonly associated with a loss of appetite and because they produce nausea, they are sometimes called bilious headaches. Blurring of vision, dark spots before the eyes, bright flashes of light, double vision or a so-called "fleeing" blindness are other more common symptoms of migraine headache. Sometimes patients report dizziness or sensitivity to noises or odors. Depression is usually evident in the patient during an attack; when it appears as a warning of an approaching headache.

While the condition appears in both sexes, it is more frequent in women than in men, commonly occurring between the ages of fifteen and thirty-five. Though the cause of the migraine headache is as yet unknown, some doctors attribute the pain to relaxation of the w. l. s. of the arteries in the upper neck and in the meninges or tissue covering the brain. The relaxation causes the arteries to dilate and permits the blood to pass through with extra force, in turn this over-stimulates various nerves and causes the headache.

Heredity seems to be a factor in migraines, and it has been observed that susceptible persons are generally of a tense, nervous type, inclined to worry and to be overconscientious. A woman is likely to be overly fastidious in the care of her home or her person, while a man is overambitious with an exaggerated sense of responsibility.

A careful physical examination is necessary and trust in the family doctor essential. The physician will, in addition to prescribing a specific drug, teach the patient to understand himself because good mental health is important in the care of migraine.

FORE! The Romans played a game like golf with a bent stick. In the early 1800's, wooden clubs were hand-made at select golf courses.

FIRST AID FACTS
SERIOUS BURNS
1. The chief cause of pain is heat, but free cloth to cut off heat supply and to keep wound free from contamination.
2. DO NOT APPLY ointment, calve, butter, or lard on serious burns. Such coverings only interfere with the doctor's examination and subsequent treatment.
3. Seek prompt medical attention.

Families Of Soldiers Receiving False Reports

On several occasions recently, the next-of-kin of soldiers serving in Vietnam have been subjected to cruel hoaxes featuring false casualty reports.

The false reports have been delivered by telephone, telegram, or in person. In each case, the hoax was discovered when the relative of the supposed casualty sought further details from a nearby Army activity.

Persons with relatives serving in Viet Nam are reminded that the official notification that an Army member is dead or missing in action ALWAYS reaches the primary next-of-kin by means of a personal visit by an officer or senior noncommissioned officer, who is prepared to present proof of his identity if asked. This first-in-person notification is followed shortly thereafter by a Western Union telegram from the Adjutant General, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C., verifying the information.

In the event of a serious wound or illness, an initial notification is normally delivered to the next-of-kin by telegram. Department of the Army NEVER sends such notices by telephone.

Anyone in this area receiving a false notification should immediately notify the Adjutant General at Fort Rucker, at telephone 2700.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

FACTS OF LIFE

Jimmy was so fascinated by his new goldfish that we thought he'd forgotten about the other one. Then, suddenly, he looked up and asked, "Mommy, will this one die too?"

I tried, as gently as I could, to tell him that, in time, all things die. And as I did so, I realized how valuable it is for a child to have even as small a pet as a goldfish. For in learning to love a pet—even in suffering the loss of one—a child begins to learn a great deal about life, in a natural and understandable way.

But I warned myself, it is important to realize that he is learning only the "soul" material part of the lesson. In order to understand what he is seeing, and what he is feeling, he must be taught its spiritual meaning. This is why religious education is so important. That is why Jimmy attends church with us... and he'll start church school, next fall.

State GI Bill Has Number Of Changes

The last special session of the Alabama Legislature made several changes in the "Alabama G. I. and Dependents' Educational Benefit Act," which will be of great interest to certain veterans and their dependents in the state.

The Act provides free tuition and instructional fees in state-supported institutions of higher learning and state trade schools for dependents of deceased and disabled veterans.

Previously entitled to benefits were wives, widows and children (including stepchildren) of those persons who lost their lives, or were listed as missing in action in World War One, World War Two, or the Korean War; or who died of service-connected disability during any of these conflicts, or who had a wartime service-connected disability of at least 40 percent at the time of death, regardless of the cause of death; or, if the veteran is still living, has a wartime service-connected disability of at least 40 percent.

Walter C. Head, Jr., director of the Alabama Department of Veterans Affairs, said, "Changes in the law now provide these same benefits for dependents of those veterans who have served at any time after December 31, 1955, to the present time if such service has been ruled 'extra hazardous' by the Veterans' Administration or other appropriate Federal agency."

In addition, the new Act provides that even though the veteran was not a permanent resident of the State of Alabama for one year immediately prior to entry into service during the specified time, the de-

Students Urged To Consider Medical Career

A YEAR OF DECISION. For thousands of senior high school students, the new academic year will be a year of serious questions, and eventual decision. Many will be taking the first steps toward choosing a career.

Will it, perhaps, be in science? If the answer is yes, Alabama Heart Association has a stake in their future and a program that can guide and help these students to their goal. The motive? Heart Association and the American people -- are banking on the boy next door and the girl around the corner to help break through existing barriers of ignorance and bring us closer to universal health. The need for new blood and new brains in many fields of scientific investigation is urgent. By 1970, for example, 77,000 trained scientists will be needed to do medical research -- compared to the 40,000 active in 1960. By 1975 -- less than 10 years from now -- conservative estimates put the need for physicians at 346,000, compared with 276,000 currently practicing. There are now 550,000 professional nurses; the figure should grow to 680,000 by 1970.

This is only part of the picture. For every physician now practicing, there are approximately 12 persons working in careers allied to medicine. Hand-in-hand with the growing need for more doctors, then, goes a mounting demand for men and women to staff the hospitals, laboratories and

In the next 5 to 10 years, for example, medical leaders estimate that the nation will need 125,000 more practical nurses, 40,000 more speech pathologists, 38,000 more medical technologists, 30,000 more dietitians and 18,000 more medical social workers -- to cite just a few of the 700-odd different career possibilities in the health professions and occupations.

The 1950s saw the health services industry grow from the nation's fifth-ranking employment field to third place in 1960. By the end of this decade, it may well rank first, ahead of agriculture and construction. Alabama Heart Association has a booklet to help students plan for more advanced and specialized study. So -- if you are a student -- ask your Heart Association for its booklet, "Decision for Research." Write Alabama Heart Association, 2912 7th Avenue, South, Birmingham, Alabama 35233.
